

UB Law Forum

Volume 13
Number 2 Fall 2000

Article 5

10-1-2000

Naming Opportunities

UB Law Forum

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.law.buffalo.edu/ub_law_forum

Recommended Citation

UB Law Forum (2000) "Naming Opportunities," UB Law Forum: Vol. 13 : No. 2 , Article 5.
Available at: https://digitalcommons.law.buffalo.edu/ub_law_forum/vol13/iss2/5

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Alumni Publications at Digital Commons @ University at Buffalo School of Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in UB Law Forum by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ University at Buffalo School of Law. For more information, please contact lawscholar@buffalo.edu.

Naming Opportunities

The Campaign for UB Law School is built around endowments, capital contributions and gifts to the annual fund. Donations for endowments are permanent gifts which produce income that supports the school's mission. Capital contributions pay for improvements to the Law School building. Both endowments and capital contributions provide our donors with dozens of opportunities for a donor's name to be perpetually connected to UB Law.

The campaign offers dozens of such opportunities, each with the potential for the donor's name to be associated with the supported program. A faculty chair, for instance, could become known as the John Smith Chair in Trial Technique.

Space limitations prevent our listing all of the naming opportunities here. For the complete list, call Development Director Mary Ann Rogers at (716) 645-2113, or write to her at UB Law School, 408 John Lord O'Brien Hall, University at Buffalo, Buffalo, N.Y. 14260.

But consider just a few of the possibilities:

- Funds may be used to establish named institutes and centers for research and curricular innovation. ($1,000,000 – $3,000,000)
- New state-of-the-art courtroom ($1,000,000)
- Benefactors may secure the future of one of the Law School's several clinics by permanently endowing and naming it. ($500,000)
- A named visiting lecture fund would enable distinguished scholars, judges and practitioners to visit the Law School for up to a week, lecturing and teaching. ($50,000 – $250,000)
- Named professorships would recognize a distinguished scholarly career marked by sustained productivity in research and curricular innovation. ($250,000)
- O'Brien Hall rooms and facilities may be named for benefactors. ($35,000 minimum)
- A sustaining gift may be made to a specialized journal, such as the Buffalo Law Review, Buffalo Human Rights Law Review, the Buffalo Environmental Law Journal or the Buffalo Women's Journal of Law and Social Policy. The donor will be permanently listed on the masthead as honorary publisher. $75,000 – $150,000)
- Benefactors may permanently endow and name a scholarship that provides full financial aid to a deserving student. ($25,000 minimum)