CARDOZO AND FRONTIERS OF LEGAL THINKING. (Revised edition). By Beryl Harold Levy. Cleveland, Ohio: The Press of Case Western Reserve University. 1969. xi + 365 pages. $9.95. The first half of this book is an essay on the significance of Justice Cardozo's career. It analyzes Cardozo's philosophical approach to law, his relationship to the jurisprudence of his day, and his methods and practices as a judge. At the end of his essay, Levy develops the theme that the judge is potentially an artist: in the construction of his opinions, in the realignment of the legal corpus, and, ultimately, as a molder of society. Twenty-two of Justice Cardozo's opinions, printed in full, make up the second half of the book.

CASES AND MATERIALS ON HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT. By Jan Z. Krasnowiecki, Professor of Law, University of Pennsylvania. St. Paul, Minnesota: West Publishing Co. 1969. xix + 697 pages. This casebook is devoted to the problems of real estate finance and development with emphasis on the problems of the housing industry at the land development, construction and marketing stages. In addition, the materials cover the major federal low and moderate income housing problems (exclusive of public housing). Special consideration is given to the interests of the housing consumer and to the role of state and local government.

CIVIL PROCEDURE: CASES AND COMMENTS ON THE PROCESS OF ADJUDICATION. By Paul D. Carrington, Professor of Law, University of Michigan. Boston, Massachusetts: Little, Brown and Company. 1969. xxx + 968 pages. This casebook is divided into three parts: Part I, The Judicial Power; Part II, Basic Problems of Decision-Making; Part III, Controls on the Use of the Process. The chapters making up Part I, serve to examine the kinds of power that judges exert over the disputants and to give the student an overview of the process of appellate review. The majority of the chapters making up Part II, Chapters Three, Four and Five, are concerned with the basic problems encountered in conducting a trial. The remaining chapters in Part II and the chapters in Part III deal with problems arising prior to trial.

COMPUTERS AND THE LAW (Second edition). Prepared by the Standing Committee on Law and Technology, American Bar Association. Robert P. Bigelow, Editor. Chicago, Illinois: Commerce Clearing House, Inc. 1969. xiii + 226 pages. $9.50. This book is designed to introduce the legal profession to modern data processing machinery. Twenty-seven computer-oriented experts contribute their views in such areas as: Introduction to Machine Methods, The Computer in the Practice of Law, Government and the Computer, The Lawyer and His Client's Computer, and Jurimetrics (the science of predicting legal results from past court actions).

MARRIED TODAY, SINGLE TOMORROW: MARRIAGE BREAKUP AND THE LAW. By Kenneth and Irene Donelson. Garden City, New York: Doubleday and Company, Inc. 1969. xiv + 320 pages. $6.95. This book considers the three stages of marital breakup. Part One discusses causative problems of marital discord. Part Two covers the actual breakup and such aspects as how to get the most from a lawyer, the costs of divorce and the grounds for divorce. Part Three discusses what happens after the breakup: who cares for the children, how to live economically, and what to consider in remarriage.

NEW RULES ON CONSUMER CREDIT PROTECTION. By the CCH Editorial Staff. Chicago, Illinois: Commerce Clearing House, Inc. 1969. 439 pages. $7.00. Designed as a desk top reference, this book explains the Federal Truth-in-Lending Act and the proposed Uniform Consumer Credit Code. The book discusses how the Truth-in-Lending Act affects "time-pay" sellers and lenders. In addition, the consumer safeguards embodied in the proposed Uniform Consumer Credit Code are fully explained.

TAXATION IN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY (World Tax Series—Second edition). By Henry J. Gumpel. Chicago, Illinois: Commerce Clearing House, Inc. 1969. vii + 4359 pages. $17.50. The World Tax Series consists of reports on national tax systems of countries throughout the world. Each report contains a description of the tax system as a whole and a detailed analysis of the most important taxes, especially the income tax. Based on this format, Taxation in the Federal Republic of Germany furnishes comprehensive and detailed information on the tax system of the Federal Republic of Germany.

THE TAX EXEMPT ORGANIZATION—A PRACTICAL GUIDE. By the CCH Editorial Staff. Chicago, Illinois: Commerce Clearing House, Inc. 1969. 372 pages. $6.00. Designed for practical use, this book provides answers to many questions concerning the tax exempt organization. In twenty-four chapters the book covers, among other things, how to qualify for tax exempt status, how to maintain this status, and how the IRS can revoke tax exempt status. IRS procedures for approval or rejection of tax exempt status are also discussed.

THE CRIME CONFEDERATION. By Ralph Salerno and John S. Tompkins. Garden City, New York: Doubleday and Company, Inc. 1969. viii + 424 pages. $7.95. In this book the authors have endeavored to present a complete picture of organized crime in America. The book covers such areas as the extent to which organized crime has corrupted public officials, the organization of organized crime, the methods used by organized crime to exact and enforce loyalty from underlings, and the extent to which organized crime has undermined legitimate corporations.

VENTURING TO DO JUSTICE. By Robert E. Keeton. Cambridge, Massachusetts: Harvard University Press. 1969. viii + 183 pages. $6.95. In the first part of this book, the author reviews methods of law reform focusing on the role of the courts and legislatures as agencies of abrupt change in the law. Urging a more active and imaginative participation in law reform by both courts and legislatures, the author proposes concrete methods for achieving these goals. In the second part of the book, the author concentrates on reform in two important areas of private law: harms caused by defective products and by traffic accidents. In the closing chapter, the author discusses the problems arising from the need to balance stability and predictability of law with flexibility and reform.

The inclusion of a book in Books Received does not preclude a subsequent review of the same book.
