Funding a charitable trust with appreciated securities

Many donors make gifts to UB and the Law School in the form of appreciated securities. Frequently, using securities allows the donor to give a gift beyond what he or she ever thought possible. Gifts of stocks and bonds can also produce significant tax advantages for the donor, including a deduction based upon the fair market value of the securities, as well as a reduction—or elimination—of capital gains taxes on the transfer.

Often, these securities provide little or no income, but have enjoyed substantial growth over the years. If the donor desires to create a stream of income for retirement, the securities can be transferred to a charitable trust where they can be sold without incurring capital gains tax. The full proceeds realized from the sale can then be reinvested by the trust to produce income for the donor. This technique can often result in doubling—or tripling—a donor’s current spendable income. In addition, the donor’s current income taxes will be reduced through the charitable tax deduction generated at the creation of the trust.

Because such charitable trusts offer immediate benefits for the donor, and ultimate benefits to the Law School, they are one of the fastest-growing vehicles for private support for higher education. Since everyone’s personal financial situation varies, it is recommended that individuals interested in making a gift contact the school so that our development professionals can work with you and your financial advisers.
