

12-1-1965

Editors' Note

Buffalo Law Review

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.law.buffalo.edu/buffalolawreview>

Recommended Citation

Buffalo Law Review, Editors' Note, 15 Buff. L. Rev. i (1965).

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.law.buffalo.edu/buffalolawreview/vol15/iss2/1>

This Editorial Note is brought to you for free and open access by the Law Journals at Digital Commons @ University at Buffalo School of Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in Buffalo Law Review by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ University at Buffalo School of Law. For more information, please contact lawscholar@buffalo.edu.

EDITORS' NOTE

The Review is proud to dedicate this issue to our distinguished alumnus, Chief Judge Charles S. Desmond, in honor of his twenty-five years of service on the New York Court of Appeals, completed on January 1, 1966. In keeping with his own desires, the praise due him has been minimized. Lead articles focus instead upon the last quarter century of New York law, judicial administration and legal education, with emphasis on those various areas of the law which have captured his particular interest. One underlying theme is nonetheless obvious—through his great energy, his sense of justice and his desire for simplification and organization, he has made a marked and lasting contribution to New York substantive law and court administration.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all of the contributors for their splendid cooperation, and we join with them formally in paying tribute to Chief Judge Desmond.

THE EDITORS